COMMUNICATION AND COUNSELLING SKILLS IN EVERYDAY LIFE

DESCRIPTION

“No man is an island” – John Donne. Human beings are social animals. It is our natural behavior to communicate with others. Good communication skills, however, are learned skills and not innate. Good counselling skills are advanced communication techniques. This course is an introduction to the basic communication and counselling skills required for establishing close and helping relationship with others. Students will be introduced to the concepts, skills and selfawareness needed for helpful interviewing and counselling and they can be applied in everyday life. Students are expected to have developed good listening skills, interviewing skills, and creative thinking and problem solving skills at the end of the course. Most importantly, this course aims to assist students to identify their personal areas of stren

SPECIAL TOPICS IN COUNSELLING:
EXPLORING HUMAN-ANIMAL INTERACTION:
FROM INTERACTIONS TO POLICY AND PRACTICE WITH HELPING PAWFESIONALS

DESCRIPTION

This interdisciplinary course examines human services relating to animal involvement in social and health care settings through the One Welfare framework. The course emphasizes the interconnected well-being of humans, animals, and the environment. Through experiential learning, inclass debates, and case studies, students will examine the ethical, practical, and research challenges in settings where human-animal relationships are involved. We will touch on generally unattended issues such as animal abuse, compassion fatigue, violence and welfare, grief and bereavement, and volunteerism in animal-assisted services. It is designed for future social sciences, mental health, and social services professionals, preparing them to face these challenges with compassion and a critical lens.

HIGHLIGHTS

Prepare for evidence-informed and ethical practice at the intersection of human services, human-animal relationships, and One Welfare.

MENTAL HEALTH SCIENCES AND SOCIETY

DESCRIPTION

This course brings together cutting-edge knowledge and discussions on mental health from diverse but related disciplines of philosophy, psychology, psychiatry, epidemiology, and social and healthcare services administration, both in the unique local context and in the international mental health scene. Students will be introduced to the critical examination of theories and practices in mental health with real-world examples. Throughout the course, conceptual explorations will be illustrated by case studies, including two complex syndromes affecting youth (i.e., psychotic disorders) and elderly (i.e., dementia), as well as other common mental health conditions such as depression, anxiety and developmental disorders (e.g., autism spectrum disorder) where appropriate. Using the conventional disease/medical model as a starting point, students will be guided to understand mental health in the broader context of biological, psychological, social and cultural factors that operate in combination to affect mental health outcomes at individual and population levels.

HIGHLIGHTS

Critically examine mental health theories and practices from youth to older adulthood in Hong Kong and globally: bridging theory, evidence, and real-world cases

TRAUMA, RESILIENCE, AND GROWTH

Highlights

From crisis to recovery:
Learn practical frameworks for real-world care

Description

From natural disaster to human inflicted violence - landslides, tsunami, earthquake, terrorist attacks, traffic accidents, witness a murder, assaults by a total stranger, domestic violence by a love one, bullying by a classmate... the list goes on and on. Increasingly, traumatic events and the resulting stress have become part of the reality of life. While some of us may have experienced a traumatic event personally, many more witnessed or heard about these events happening around them. Recognizing the impact of traumatic event on a person and understanding the person's post-traumatic reactions is important for both human service professionals and lay persons. This course provides an overview of the study of traumatic stress. Topics covered in this course include the historical development and major theoretical perspectives of trauma research, symptoms and presentation of trauma survivors, post-traumatic stress and growth, treatments available and their research evidence.

USE OF CREATIVE ARTS IN SOCIAL WORK PRACTICE

Description

This course introduces the theories of creative arts as healing and illustrates the use of creative arts in local social work contexts, including individual or group counselling setting and community development setting. It is a practical course with hands-on experience to the use of creative arts in expression, communication and healing. Creative arts are action-oriented and process-focused. The development of skills and use of creative arts for self-exploration go simultaneously in this course. Students will have the opportunity to experiment with the use of arts for creative exploration and self-understanding. Different arts media will be introduced, including visual art, craft work, music, sounds, dramatic exercises, spontaneous movement and writing. The students will synthesize their personal experience with conceptual learning through experiential activities, live demonstration, listening exercise, case studies, video analysis and 149 sharing. This course is not a formal creative arts therapy training, but offers opportunities for exploring the resources of creative arts in social work context.

FRONTIERS IN INTERVENTIONS AROUND DEATH, DYING AND BEREAVEMENT

Highlights

Through lectures, an experiential workshop, and a field trip, students explore death, dying, and bereavement as real-life challenges, developing reflection and foundational intervention understanding for personal life and helping roles.

Description

There are more than a hundred deaths each day in Hong Kong, but death is a taboo for most of us. The unfamiliarity towards death induces a sense of anxiety when this topic is brought up to us. Death-related problem is one of the commonest issues that clients bring to counselling, but is often rated as the most uncomfortable scenario by beginning counsellors. This course is designed for students with an interest in understanding death, dying and bereavement. It offers a close examination on the challenges individuals, families and service providers face surrounding life-threatening illness and death. Theories and intervention strategies on end-of-life and bereavement care are reviewed. This course increases students' competence in working with clients facing death, dying, loss and trauma.

ADVANCED SOCIAL DATA ANALYSIS

PRE-REQUISITES: SOWK2144

DESCRIPTION

Statistical methods play a crucial role in the social sciences. This course aims to equip students with a basic knowledge of how to perform advanced statistical methods commonly used in empirical research. While some mathematical details are needed, the primary focus of this course is the theoretical underpinning and the application of core methods in social work research, program evaluation and policy research. We will build the students' statistical literacy through providing an overview of more advanced topics including linear methods for regressions, generalized linear regressions, multilevel models, survival analysis, factor analysis, and structural equation models.

HIGHLIGHTS

Covers advanced statistical methods with practical applications in social work and policy research, strengthening students' ability to analyze data, interpret findings, and critically evaluate empirical studies.

COMPASSIONATE MIND AND PRACTICE: PATHS TO HEALING AND GROWTH

DESCRIPTION

Pain and suffering are universal experiences that often lead individuals to seek counselling. How can practitioners effectively attend to and endure suffering, while fostering growth and flourishing in the face of distress? Compassion may offer a guiding light. In this experiential course, students will learn about the compassion-oriented approach that centers on the evolutionary perspective of our emotion systems and the flows of compassion. They will explore the fear of compassion and practice some evidence-based strategies for developing a compassionate mind to support growth and wellbeing in daily life and counselling contexts. The learning experience will enable students to engage in compassion through awareness, practices and in-depth reflection for applying it meaningfully in their personal and professional lives.

HIGHLIGHTS

An experiential journey to learn the meaning, science, fear, and evidence-based practices of compassion for transforming distress.
“The course content encourages self-care and compassion that are really related to our mental wellbeing.”
